What's Your Story?

The turkey buzzard sat feeding on the carrion left from a morning mishap with an automobile. I just almost made the creature the second choice on the open road menu. The animal refused to leave its feeding to the near detriment of its own health. What a story. What of that coincides with my story? God calls us to come away from the carrion of this place and feast as His children at His table.

Your story is my story is ultimately the story of every human life. And our personal and collective stories make sense only in relation to God's Story as we learn it through Jesus. The gospel of Christ is the unfolding story of God's good purposes for the creatures he has made in his own image and likeness.

In its simplest form, then, evangelism is inviting people into the story of Jesus. It is challenging people to see themselves and all the events and relationships of their lives in the light of Jesus as their Way, Truth, and Life. The task of evangelism is to share the gospel so as to invite people to channel the streams and tributaries of their human experience into the ocean vastness of God's love for them in Christ. It is to call them to find meaning, identity, and purpose for their lives in knowing and following him.

The world's culture offers the option of shutting out God, pursuing a self-willed agenda, and suffering the tragic consequences, i.e. feeding on the decaying. The church is called out of the world to be an alternative culture whose identity is shaped by God's nature, whose activities reflect his redemptive love, and where authentic joy reigns.

Our neighbors won't get caught up in the story of Jesus until they see us genuinely engaged with it. The heart of evangelism is not bumper stickers, T-shirts, and tracts; it is bona fide imitation of Jesus. Only when our churches are cultural alternatives to the world's racism and sexism, jealousy and rivalry, selfishness and materialism can we be light in a dark world (F.o.L.).

In the process of engaging with the people of God, people hear and see the gospel and begin to move to its beat and harmony. They see how The Story engages their personal stories. They encounter the Holy Spirit and are changed.

The unsafe-but-inviting story told in Scripture still engages and enlists hearts. Our task is to model it. Paint the picture. Make the music. God sees to the result.

In Him,
Terry
