Peggy Walker continues to be in need of our prayers.

Carmen Cuevas-Rivera has been in Jasper's hospital for the last several days. Carmen has been visiting and studying with us for several weeks now. If you would like to send an encouraging note or card her home address is:

61 Gemini Ct. Unit 5130
Ellijay, Georgia 30540

Terri Lynn Carpenter had to have gallbladder surgery after gangrene set up. Future surgery may also be required. For those that don't know, Terri Lynn is Brenda McEntyre's daughter.

Carol Tull, Tracy Sisson's mom, remains in the hospital and was to undergo surgery this past Friday.

Bella Baker will be having tonsils and adenoids removed within the next two weeks.

June Handte continues to have medical issues going on. Please keep her in your prayers.

We will be collecting drinks for canteen at Camp. They want to limit the drinks to coke, sprite, dr. pepper and mountain dew, (or their cheaper counter parts). Drinks donated will be shared between the first two weeks of Camp. We will have a box in the lobby for people to place the drinks in. Also, we are in need of Camp Scholarships. If you would like to make a donation, it would be greatly appreciated. Thank you for your help.

The lady on camera from Oklahoma shook her head and looked into the interviewer's eyes. "It was just God's will that I was spared when the tornado hit," she said. "The Bible says 'everything happens for a reason,' and I believe that. I believe it now more than ever."

For starters, the Bible most assuredly does not say that everything happens for a reason. To the contrary, the Bible says there is a great deal of randomness in human experience: "He causes his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sends rain on the righteous and the unrighteous" (Matthew 5:45).

If there was a one-to-one relationship between good people and good outcomes on the one hand and bad people and bad experiences on the other, we would be hard pressed to explain the stories of Job, Jesus, and Christian martyrs. That good people don't get a pass on pain is as it must be. Otherwise, we would all be Christians just to avoid bankruptcy, cancer, or tornadoes.

And what of the two dozen who died? Especially the children? Or the dead and wounded from the Boston bombing? Or the British soldier murdered on the street? Were those events and their outcomes "just God's will" too? Small comfort that! To believe these things were God's will would motivate most of us either to atheism or to faith in a God who is more to be dreaded than loved.

I don't think people such as the lady on TV mean harm. In fact, I am quite sure they mean to be saying something pious and affirming. They are trying to lean into their faith to deal with unimaginable shock. They are attempting to express gratitude for being alive and to acknowledge their faith in God.

Perhaps it is better simply to say we don't know why certain horrible (or wonderful!) things happen in our world. To confess our fears and confusion; to accept good fortune with a view toward using it to help others as well as self.

Not everything that happens in this world is God's will by any means. But, in everything that happens, we can seek God's will by continuing to trust, being faithful to what we know is right, and encouraging others to do the same.

"We know that God causes everything to work together for the good of those who love him and are called according to his purpose for them" (Romans 8:28). Modified

Because the Tomb's Empty,
Terry
